The Ashberry Collection

"If you are working on something that you really care about, you don't have to be pushed.

The vision pulls you." – Steve Jobs

Ashberry is a species found regularly in the US. Mainly from the Ohio River Valley and South thereof.

When sliced on the quarter, it yields a more linear appearance, slightly open pored. It can also be flat sliced, but the pattern is more swirly and wild when produced in that method.

As part of our custom production of dyed veneers, we are introducing three selected species during the first half of this year, that will be offered in three specific colors per species. We will be offering these species as stock items in our inventory. Other colors are certainly available, but will be custom produced requiring a minimum quantity. Please visit our website for further information on this species. The Ashberry Collection is available with FSC® Controlled Wood Certification.

Founder and CEO, Scott G. Brogan, to celebrate 32 year tenure in the wood veneer industry this year.

“When I reflect on how it began, I am humbled by and thankful for the opportunity as it was presented to me.

After graduating from IU in 1989, I was accepted as an apprentice for a company in Germany, who was somehow related to the David R. Webb Company in Edinburgh IN. All I knew, was that both companies did something with logs. Cool!

Having just graduated, and really just wanting to better my language skills in German, I set off on what I never expected to become a life changing event.

My passion for the product was born, and I took the opportunity to pursue the business when I returned to the US.” states Brogan

Given the task to expand the Webb Brand into the architectural market place, Brogan remained with the Group until he departed to begin his own niche in the industry and founded Brogan Wood Products in 2008. This year Brogan Wood Products will celebrate 14 years being in business, as a member company of the Scott Brogan Group.
